DETAILED ACTION

Election/Restrictions

Applicant's election without traverse of Group I in the reply filed on 2/5/10 is acknowledged.

Claim 4 is withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b) as being drawn to a nonelected invention, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Election was made without traverse in the reply filed on 2/5/10.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Hasegawa et al. (Hasegawa), U.S. Patent 7,351,313.

The Hasegawa patent discloses the claimed method for manufacturing a nano carbon material, comprising the step of forming the nano carbon material on the surface of a metal catalyst by means of electrolysis in an electrolysis solution containing an organic solvent, where the cathode is formed on a semiconductor (see col. 6, lines 30-67). The patent further discloses the formation of the metal by etching as claimed (see col. 10, lines 35-45).

Accordingly, the claims are anticipated.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Art Unit: 1795

Claim 2 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hasegawa as applied to claims above, and further in view of Reuter et al. (Reuter), U.S. Patent 3,627,647.

The Hasegawa discloses another method for the formation of the metal electrodes onto the substrate, however, it fails to disclose the formation by electrolysis. The Reuter patent is cited to show the formation of electrodes onto semiconductors by the use of electrolysis is routinely practiced in the art of semiconductor treatment (see claims 1-5).

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify Hasegawa by the teachings of Reuter.

One having ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated to do this modification, because the Reuter patent teaches the conventional formation of metal by electrolysis onto a semiconductor.
